Winning of Baseball Team and Talk of Aviation Contest Puts Party in Excellent Humor-Some Minor and Amusing Incidents of the Journey. Voting Contest Is Held,

Members of the Chamber of Commerce who formed the excursion party which returned to the city from Norfolk yesterday morning are very enthusiastic about the pleasures of the trip.

Washington on July 4, as the subject had been broached Sunday night and formed the chief topic of conversation on the trip back to the city. In fact, plans for the proposed contest were thoroughly talked over, and the excursion had no sooner landed than President Gude and others went to work with a will on the aviation proposition.

But the trip was the most pleasant, taking all things into account, the Chamber members have ever enjoyed. The weather was propitious, arrangements for the trip worked out without a hitch, and all enjoyed themselves to the full Sunday an Ideal Day. Sunday at Old Point seems to have been the time of greatest enjoyment. The daylight hours were just full enough of activity to give the excursionists good appetites without tiring them in mind and body. Each followed his inclination, to swim in the natatorium, to row on the water, to ride about the government reservations, or just to loaf about the corridors and plazzas of the Chamberlin and gather in ozone from the sea breezes.

The Chamber team won in the baseball game with the team at Old Point, and this was a matter of satisfaction to the excursionists. In fact, this and the prospect of somehow pulling off the aviation contest on Independence Day put the party in great good humor all the way home Monday night. If there was anything to mar the pleasure of the trip those in Washington have not heard of it from the returned excursionists.

It appears that in the minds of some of the ladies stopping at the Chamberlin. there was a difference of opinion as to who was the best-looking man in the party, with the decision lying between William F. ART STUDENTS GET REWARD OF MERIT

Graduating Exercises Held at Corcoran Gallery.

The graduating exercises of the art school of the Corcoran Gallery of Art last night was of a picturesque nature. The building, brilliantly illuminated with hundreds of electric bulbs, showing to advantage statuary and paintings, made the scene one of splendor, while handsome bouquets and perfume of flowers lent color and warmth to the view. The awarding of medals and diplomas of merit took place at the head of the great white marble stairway.

F. B. McGuire, director of the gallery, presided, and seated in the circle with him were Gen. H. B. Wilson, E. C. Messer, A. J. Parson, J. H. Moser, C. P. Minnigerode, and Dr. Frank Baker.

E. C. Messer Speaks. The address was made by E. C. Messer who explained the object of the school's teachings. In his remarks he deplored a tendency on the part of France and Germany to abandon tradition and trust to individual caprice.

The awards were made by Gen. Wilson. When Riichiro Kawashima, of Japan, came forward to receive the bronze medal for drawing, Gen. Wilson complimented nim as a student representing one of the greatest and most progressive nations on earth. And again when he was awarded the s.lver medal for composition he was hailed as "always in the front ranks."
